About the artist

Franco-Spanish, Téré grew up in the heart of a family farm in the Andalusian countryside, a land both arid and warm, then followed her adolescent years in France where she discovered music, introduced to singing by her Spanish music teacher.

From then on, music and singing in particular would always be with her: in the Spanish village with childhood friends, at the University in Bristol training with English student musicians in a Bossa-Nova register, and in Costa Rica attracted by Latin American rhythms.

Quickly integrated into Costa Rican society, Téré met artists and answered a casting call to form a pop group in Costa Rica, "5Cero6", which would find great success.

The young woman then juggled between her life as an English teacher and that of a recognized artist with television performance, recording studios, interviews, concerts, and opening for David Bisbal. Following this enriching experience Téré wrote her first songs which she recorded in a professional studio with the birth of the Pop Rock group "Fénix" produced by a Canadian.

Téré developed a taste for writing during her four years in Latin America, creating and recording her first original songs. She returned to Spain and settled in Madrid, continuing to evolve in her music, and then moved to France where she connected with Bernard Agius to create Amor Esencial.

Téré's influences range from Charles Aznavour to Queen via Jean-Jacques Goldman, Paco de Lucía, Alanis Morissette and Joaquín Rodrigo. She continues to cultivate her taste for music and writing, a source of pleasure and of escape, essential to one's well-being!

With Amor Esencial, Téré offers us a fascinating, intense and deep album. Currently streaming on all platforms.
